The National Soldiers' Cometeries.

Brovet Lieutenant Colonel J. M. Moore, Assistant
Quartermaster United States Array, has recently returned from a tour of observation through the State of turned from a tour of chervatica through the State of Virginia, for the purpose of inspecting the work performed by the corps of workmen under his supervision, engaged in establishing United States comoteries. He reports a great improvement in the tone of the people of Virginia towards those employed in the work of removing the remains of our soldiers. Instead of impeding their labors by potty annoyances and exhibitions of spile, as formerly, they now, generally speaking, evince a disposition to render away assistance in their power, such as giving any information in their powersion in reference to the location the single road leading to it, sed the roughness of the single road leading to it, sed the remains which were buried there have been removed to the National Comstery at City Point, Va. The monument it was designed to occut at Point of Rocks has also been removed to City Point and is to be set up in that cometery. Lodges are in process of erection at all of the national cemeteries for the accomme-dation of the superintendents. They will contain two rooms, one as a sleeping apartment for the superintendent and one to be used as a reception room. The superintendents are appointed principally from among the discharged soldiers who have been dischled from wounds received in action, and will have the rank and pay of ordinance suggestin. The exploration of the burtal corps have extended to the mountains, where the bodies of a large number of our soldiers were found, most of whom were killed by guerilian.
